AOAC INTERNATIONAL

Professionals Dedicated to Analytical Excellence

About AOAC's Individual Membership

AOAC INTERNATIONAL is a professional scientific association dedicated to the validation of analytical methods and quality laboratory management. Today AOAC's membership numbers reach nearly 3,000 members from more than 90 countries, working in industry, government and academia. These individuals are laboratory managers, analytical chemists, microbiologists, toxicologists, forensic scientists, management executives and much more. Membership and active participation in AOAC INTERNATIONAL is an opportunity for these professionals to demonstrate their dedication to analytical excellence.

Making the Most of Your Individual Membership

Sections

AOAC Sections are located worldwide and provide opportunities for participants to share information, build professional contacts, expand leadership skills and gain practical management experience.

Technical Divisions

AOAC offers two specific technical divisions to our members. Each technical division is field specific and provides members a forum for networking and collaboration within their specialty area. Division membership is a unique vehicle for making the AOAC your association and for tailoring programs and activities to meet your particular professional concerns.
